I've given up competing with the internet. Search there; you get something like this:

The collage consists of several panels of STM and AFM images. On the left, there are four panels (a, b, c, d) showing periodic surface patterns in yellow and green. In the center, there are two panels (a) labeled 'AFM' and 'STM' showing grayscale images of a surface, and a 3D schematic (b) showing a molecular structure on a metal surface with atoms labeled H, O, Cr, and Si. To the right, there are several more panels showing different surface patterns and molecular structures in various colors (yellow, orange, green, black). A navigation arrow is visible on the right side of the collage.
